REQUIREMENT

Office clearance of redundant IT equipment and furniture due to relocation.

A worldwide leader in the delivery of innovative business software solutions to over 150 countries in more than 30 languages Epicor is an expanding software house with offices across the world. Due to expansion it became essential for Epicor to relocate and consolidate to new premises, leaving behind both IT and office equipment which was no longer required. It is for this reason Epicor engaged with Canopus Solutions to provide secure asset retirement for their redundant IT equipment.

Canopus Solutions quickly identified that Epicor required more than just secure data destruction and recycling for their IT equipment they needed an office clearance solution. Following a site survey to agree all equipment to be collected and recycled a date was set for the collection.

Working with our logistics partner, Freight First, we were able to prepare all equipment for collection and load all items in a single load for removal from site and return to our processing facility in Runcorn, Cheshire.

Upon receipt all IT equipment was logged and assigned a unique barcode so that they could be tracked through the data erasure process. Once all items had been processed Epicor were provided with reports showing all assets received, recycling certificates, data destruction certificates, and waste transfer notes.

Working within our zero land fill policy all items were graded and recycled utilising one of the following methods, remarketing as a complete unit, broken down into component parts for re-use, or refined into raw materials for use by manufacturers in new products.
